The noble Polish coat of arms Nostitz.

Die adlige polnische Familie Nostitz.

Nostitz, coat of arms. Families belonging to the coat of arms: Choczowski, Nostitz or Nostycz Nostitz - a noble family from Upper Lusatia , who spread Silesia , the Czech Republic and Poland quite early on .

The Lords of Nostitz have been registered in their ancestral seat in Nostitz (Obere Nosaćica) - today a district of the town of Weißenberg - since 1280 . In 1439 Nostitz was sold by the family. The family was divided into three branches:

1. Unworthiness (near Kittlitz) with the line Unworthiness and Cunewalde ,
2. Ullersdorf (near Jänkendorf) with two lines: Ullersdorf and Schönbrunn (the latter includes the Silesian lines

- Mitsch, Ransau, Lampertsdorf and Zedlitz) and
3. Rothenburg with the Rothenburg, Guttau and Tzschocha lines . The actual line of the Rothenburg Nostitz family began with Caspar von Nostitz (d. 1484), whose three sons Hartwig, Georg and Otto (I.) founded the later heavily branched lines of Tzschoch, Guttau and Rothenburg.

Czech Republic

Jan Hertwik Nostitz (1610-1683)

The Czech Graf Zweig comes from the Czoch line established by Hertwik von Nostitz . His great-grandson Johann von Nostitz (died 1619), was chairman of the regional council of the Duchy of Wola , left two sons, Otto (II) and Johann Hartwig; from the former comes the Rokytnice line, which was given the title of baron in 1681, the title of Bohemian count in 1675 and the title of imperial count (imperial count) in 1692 . In 1890 the line ended at o'clock. Józefie Nostic (1821-1890).

The founder of the Rieneck line was the second son of the aforementioned Johann von Nostitz, Jan Hertwik Nostic (1610 Wińsko -1683), who acted as a true privy councilor and supreme chancellor of the Czech Republic. He received Sokolov in his will after Otto von Nostitz (III.) . In 1631 he became Baron Sokolov, in 1641 a Czech graphemaker, in 1651 an imperial graph and in 1673 he invested in part of the County of Rieneck. Pakoměřice Castle became the headquarters of the Nostitz-Rieneck line, and after the Měšice Castle was built in 1775, the family moved there. After the Second World War, the Counts of Nostitz-Rieneck were deported from Czechoslovakia to Austria and their property was confiscated.

Silesia, from 1711 the Count's branch comes from the Ransauer branch of the House of Mitsch. The Prussian general August Ludwig von Nostitz comes from this line .

The coat of arms of the Nostitz family shows a red and silver checkered bull horn in a blue field. On the helmet with a red and silver cover of the horns.

Garczyński coat of arms (vol. 4 pp. 68-73)

Garczynski coat of arms. MRS. Hemp. A jewel named Calatowa is struck for their coat of arms. MRS. about Familiach Prus. they are attracted by the Junosz coat of arms. The Sas coat of arms is known in the genealogy on the Krasiński engraving card; it bears a great resemblance to the jewel of Sas, after all with a different symmetry you find it here, ie an arrow pointing straight up at an iron angle, above the moon with horns on a new moon; lowered, and the arrows on the sides of the moon on this side and on the other, on a star, four ostrich feathers over the helmet, so I saw it; on P. 69] the home seal of one of them, the same was given by Fr. Mikołaj Garczyński Soc. He was born in this house and added that his name was Cholewa, or it was different from the Cholewa coat of arms, and in Kazan it is faked like that at his funeral. Rzeszowski, but elsewhere I saw only three feathers on the helmet through which the arrow ironically steers towards the right target. Brantovna was one of those families behind him. Jędrzej Richter Tczweski, brother of our Br. Mikołaj, died around 1667. I read Bogusław in 1668. in Monitu. Residential Mariaeburg. Samson, Ensign of Chełmiński, said goodbye to this world in 1667. He was buried with the Carmelites in Danzig, the wife of his Pomeranian chamberlain Jan Werda, whose daughter her daughter and Dorpowski were consecrated. Aleksander, brother of Samson, both were born to Pisieńska Rengelinowna, their son was Orle, Garczyn, Iłownica, Krtów, zu MS. writes about the Prussian family, but in the foreword ad Conceptus mirabiles I read that the mother was Samson Grzymułtowska, the sister of the Poznan voivod; I don't know if it's better to say that Grzymułtowska gave birth to his wife Werdzianka, but that MS. he hesitates that the Verdy Chamberlain von Pomorski Grzymułtowska had behind him. From this Werdzianka Samson had three sons, Damian, Krzysztof and Stanisław; Of these, Stanisław, the castellan of Konarski from Lasocka, his son Franciszek, Gnieźnieński and Poznan Canon, several times deputy of the Crown Court. Damian was the standard-bearer of Poznan, his first wife, Anna Radomicka, castellan of Kaliska, gave him four sons, Ludwik, the Poznan headmaster, Stanisław, first the Poznan hunter, then the castellan of Bydgoszcz, now castellan of Inowrocław, his from Szczawińska, son of Wacław, and from Załuska, Józef: Stefan, striker Ensign Wachowski, [p. 70] he was marshal at the Sejmik in Średa and deputy, now castellan of Gniezno, his descendants of Zofia Tuchołczanka, the elder Jasieniecka, and among them his son Franciszek. Franciszek is Damian's fourth son. Damian's second wife, Ludwika Leszczyńska of the Wieniawa coat of arms, including son Michał Koronowski, professor of the Cistercian Order, and daughter Angela, nun of S. Franciszek in Bydgoszcz. Adam from Malbork Province signed the election of Jan Kazimierz. Stanisław na Garczynie and Orlu, from the Sejm 1683, commissioner for the demarcation between the Masovian Voivodeship and the Duchy of Prussia. Cons. fol. 12. Garczyński for Jan Zamojski's guardian, Starost Kałuski, then the Voivode of Sandomierz, one of whom was Eufrozyna Ołdakowska. N. Garczyńska Ensign of Chełmińska, Dominika Kossowski, the wife. Jan Deputy of the Crown Court in 1725. At that time Johannes was in a mental state. You are also in Krakow. Of these, Jan signed the Cracow Confederation. Joanna Tyburce Chrzastowski, Zadora coat of arms, spouse. The Zapendowsky of Prussia seal themselves with this coat of arms, but according to the Ministry of Justice. The sword does not place an arrow over the Prussian families. The same Dargolewskis there, but the sword wheel does not have two stars.

Wielądek in heraldry entered this family in Volume IV. from Niesiecki, later in the volume of V., he enclosed a separate and detailed description that was given to him, as he writes from authentic documents. And the love for the coat of arms refers to its description in Volume IV. According to Niesiecki, it is not known why this ace is mentioned in the coat of arms. Wielądek's genealogy is as follows. -

This old house in Prussia, Pomeranian Voivodeship, was named Garczyn Garczyńskie by the first ancestors of his heirs.
