

A watercolor illustration of a tailor in a workshop. The tailor, an older man with a balding head and a mustache, is wearing a dark vest over a blue and white striped long-sleeved shirt and dark trousers. He is kneeling on a wooden floor, focused on sewing a piece of light-colored fabric. To his left is a large wooden rack filled with various colored threads. In the background, several coats are hanging on a wall. The scene is lit with soft, natural light, creating a warm and industrious atmosphere.
